While his neighbors have sustained considerable loss of cattle, Mr. Clark says that he has not lost any yet, and has feed and water in abundance for all that he owns. There was a meeting of the territorial loan commission yesterday mainly for the purpose of receiving an application from the Bank of Prescott for the changing of thirty-five territorial six per cent. funding bonds for five per cents. The bonds bear the date of Jan. 15, 1888 and are of $1,000 each. They and the accrued interest now amount to $36,050. The query that suggests itself in reading the above is where is the bank of Prescott located. Prescott has three banks but the bank of Prescott is not among the number.

Zilba O. Brown reports that on his return trip from the east, when passing through Hutchinson, Kansas, he saw men wading through water in the streets, up above their knees, going to their place of business. While recent rains have done some damage to crops in the state he says that the average of the wheat and corn crop for the state will be good. Where the crops were not damaged by floods they are simply enormous. He says that half the crop might be destroyed and still the aggregate for the state would be large.

The August number of 10 Story Book, shows a new feature which ought to be popular with the reading public. It is a book reviewing department under the direction of John Stapleton Cowley-Brown, whose work along these lines in The Goose Quill and other publications has attracted much attention. The opening review in the August number is ample evidence that Mr. Cowley-Brown has lost none of his variety or independence. Of the ten stories in this issue "The Wise Widow," by Helena Smith, is given the place of honor. The short story masterpiece in this issue is perhaps the best of the long series which has been running in 10 Story Book. It is by Moritz Jokai and is entitled "The Bundle of Letters."

Miss Kitty White, of Minehaha, defeated all competitors in the Fourth of July steer tying contest at Walnut Grove. The News-Herald gives the following account of it: The spectators were given a real treat in the steer-tying exhibition, given by Miss Kit White, of Minehaha. The young lady is very averse to exhibiting her skill with the rope and yielded only after a great deal of persuasion. It was an exhibition which few, even in that western crowd, had seen more skillfully and gracefully performed. At the dropping of the flag Miss White started her horse at a bound, soon overtaking the steer. Swinging her lariat in graceful curves above her head, she threw it on the animal and had him on his side in an instant. Springing from her horse she tied him securely down, accomplishing it all in the short space of forty seconds, and with such ease and grace as might have kindled a spark of envy in many a masculine breast, who saw this much sought for honor wrested from them by this slender, brown eyed girl.

An ingenious peace officer in Tombstone has invented a scheme for redeeming the erring brother from over indulgence in the flowing bowl. When a man gets properly loaded and imagines he is the center of attraction, the officer takes in all of his remarks with a phonograph, records all of his actions and his general appearance with a kinesiograph, then when he gets sober, reproduces the same for the benefit of the hilarious indulger. The result is that he thereafter avoids the seductive decoction even as he would a sidewinder. In other words, he gives him a chance to see himself as others see him. It is a great scheme.—Prospector.

J. J. Fisher and F. J. Hesse have been awarded two important surveying contracts. One is in the Blue river section in Graham county and the other is in the Tonto Basin country in Gila county. The Blue river contract aggregates about 250 miles of lines and the Tonto Basin contract will call for between 300 and 400 miles, the latter embracing over four full townships. Mr. Hesse has just completed some work for the firm in the Grand Canyon, and will leave shortly for Blue river and two parties will be placed at work there. It will require about six weeks to complete the contract and in November work will be commenced on the Tonto Basin contract.

The Samuel Hill Hardware company has recently received a big shipment of camping outfits of all kinds and descriptions and some of the articles are very unique. One of the articles that is especially unique is a folding water bucket constructed out of heavy water proof canvas. The bucket can be folded up and carried in the coat pocket and when unfolded it will hold fully three gallons of water. The bucket has only been on the market a few weeks. Another handy camping outfit can be packed in a tin case only a few inches square and when unpacked it contains everything needed about a camp for cooking and preparing a meal and dishes enough for six people to eat with. It is certainly a wonder for compactness.

Rev. J. B. Bell, a colored minister from El Paso, Texas, has been in the city for a few days looking up the possibilities of organizing a church and Sunday school among his people. He is a missionary evangelist for New Mexico and Arizona, and has been successful in organizing several churches and Sunday schools in these two territories. He is now making a special effort to build a church and kindergarten at Douglas, where he has organized a church and secured a lot on which to erect the buildings. The kindergarten will be conducted something like an orphan's home, and homeless colored children will be cared for and educated there. He is meeting with good success over the territory.

Full dress, Tuxedo and Prince Albert suits are in the suit sale at Block's.

S. W. Higley, who recently purchased a couple of ranches in Pinal county will put in a large pumping plant and devote the land to cantaloupe culture. He has investigated the soil and water and says they are better adapted to the growth of cantaloupes than any he knows of elsewhere. Cantaloupes are proving to be the most profitable crops grown in the Salt River valley.

Tom Schultz has just completed the printing of his special edition of the Prospect and brought a few copies home with him on his return from Kansas City. The edition is a very creditable one containing an exhaustive write up of the mining industry of this county. It is profusely illustrated and as great care has been taken in its preparation it will be found to be accurate and reliable. An edition of 10,000 copies was printed for free distribution at the St. Louis exposition.

A. G. Moseman of New York, Prof. Bryden, of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and Mr. Kershaw, of Fall River, Massachusetts came out last week to visit the Crown King property. They were met at Ash Fork by Mr. Shuttelf with a special train on Thursday and taken direct to the above camp remaining there until Monday when they came to Prescott and left for the east on Tuesday morning. They were very highly pleased with their visit to the above property and with the success which has been achieved in the operation of the plant.

The habeas corpus proceedings in which Isaac N. Reichneker instituted an action to recover the custody of his five and one-half year old boy from his former wife, Mrs. Carrie B. Farnsworth was heard before Judge Sloan on Tuesday morning. The couple had been divorced about a year and a half ago and the custody of the child was awarded to its grandmother, the mother of Mrs. Farnsworth, for a year. The father claims that he was then to have custody and the mother claiming not to know anything of this, at the expiration of a year, took charge of the boy and came here with him in May, having resided here since that time. Since the habeas corpus proceedings were instituted last week the boy has been in charge of the sheriff. After hearing the case this morning Judge Sloan gave the child temporarily to its mother and announced that he would make a final determination of the case later.

The Martinez Herald publishes quite a romantic story about Dick Wick Hall. Briefly told, his name is not Dick but De Forest Hall. About eight years ago he married a young lady in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, the daughter of a wealthy banker. After only a few days of married life the bride's father compelled her to leave her young spouse and he came west, changing his name to Dick Wick Hall. While submitting to the separation the young wife refused to get a divorce and remained true to her banished husband. Her father dying recently she inherited his estate and immediately set on foot a search for her husband, being rewarded for her search last week by finding him in Phoenix, where, she presented to him their seven year old daughter who was born after his departure. To have a wife and child restored to a man after a separation of eight years and to have them accompanied by a fortune is a streak of good luck not often accorded a young man in Arizona.
